STEADY, RELIABLE SUPPLY WITH VIEGA

When your business relies on a steady stream of supplies, choosing a product like Viega PureFlow Crimp fittings means you won't have an issue.

That's why DGH Plumbing Inc. in Charlotte, North Carolina, relies strictly on Viega Crimp and Viega PureFlow PEX tubing. The company plumbs an average of 400 production and custom homes a year, along with a bit of commercial work.

"The biggest reason we've stayed with Viega is that I've had next to zero problems with it," said Dave Hadden, President and CEO of DGH. "As long as I have a good price and supply, when you're doing production homes, that's everything. You've got to be able to count on it, so not having to think about it means it's good."

Hadden said his company has used Viega exclusively for about 12 years. He said that changing products is a huge hassle, so when you find something good like Viega, you stick with it.

PLUMBER USES CRIMP FOR TRACT HOMES

Piedmont Plumbers of Charleston, South Carolina, has relied on Viega PureFlow Crimp products for a decade. With no complaints, they're not changing anytime soon.

Jimmy Veronee, part owner of Piedmont Plumbers of Charleston, said Viega's crimp fittings are "one of the better products that we use," and noted that in 10 or more years of use he hasn't had a single problem.

"If I'm not having problems, then why change the product?" he said. "I've got it in my own house that I recently built. It's a good product and you can make repairs too if you need. It's an easy product to work with."

Piedmont plumbs more than 600 tract homes a year, using the Viega crimp fittings throughout the house, and some ManaBloc systems as well.
